FEW REQUESTS FOR CHARITY

Less Want in Town this Year than for Some Time Past. Few Calls for Assistance and Some Funds will be Held.

For some reason which no one seems able to explain, the demand for charity this Christmas season is smaller in Gettysburg than for many years. So true is this, in fact, that it is proposed not to distribute several of the funds which become available at this time.

The demands on the Eichelberger Fund have been far below those of other years and the persons who have applied for help from this source have in almost every instance asked only for fuel. Most of the poor people of town, who usually have to ask for groceries and other provisions, seem to be supplied just now and but little money is being expended for this purpose.

At Christmas time the Stahl Charity Fund of $120.00 becomes available. The poor people of town know this and usually there are many requests for weeks before in order that the people applying may be placed on the list and be assured of some share of this fund. This morning it was stated that not one such request had been made up to this time. If there is not more need, than now appears to be the case, it is likely that some of the money may be held over for later in the winter when the savings of the summer months will have been exhausted and outside help will be a necessity in many homes.

Realizing this condition and the general spirit of generosity which always prevails about the holidays, Gettysburg Lodge of Elks have decided not to send out their Christmas baskets this year but, instead, decided at a recent meeting to set aside the sum usually expended in this way, and to distribute it when needed later in the winter. It is believed that much more actual good will be accomplished.

As a comparison with last winter it was cited this morning that, shortly after Christmas 1914, it was necessary to appeal to the public for aid to supplement the Eichelberger Fund so that all who deserved help might be supplied. This year there is sufficient money without making such appeal and it is hoped, by the wise distribution of the money now on hand, to avoid the necessity of making a public appeal later on.

THOUGHTFUL ACT

This Corporation Remembers Unfortunates at Holiday Season.

The inmates at the County Home were given a Christmas treat this afternoon by the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company. C. B. Dougherty took out sufficient ice cream to give each one a generous dish and they enjoyed it greatly. Ice cream is provided every July Fourth on the menu at the Home but it is seldom provided at any other time. All were most grateful for the thoughtful action of the company and its manager to-day.

GRIPPE CAUSES MUCH SICKNESS

Gettysburg Adds its Number to those Suffering from Winter Colds and Discomforts that Go with them. Other Places too.

Invading Gettysburg and attacking many persons, the old mid-winter disease, grippé, has brought suffering, physical wretchedness and attendant discomforts to local people. The epidemic is not confined to Gettysburg but is almost nation-wide and health directors everywhere have issued preventive instructions.

The disease is said to be very infectious. It is quickly spread about by persons when they sneeze or cough. Attacks of grippé come within a few hours. The sufferer suddenly takes a chill. This is the time to go to bed. Within a short time the patient will be aching from head to foot.

Reports received by the department of health and by Dr. Dixon show that the disease is not nearly as virulent as it was in the great epidemic that swept the country in 1889. Dr. Dixon who prepared a work on the last great outbreak of the disease in the United States, says the attack has not assumed the proportions of a serious epidemic.

Isolation of persons who have contracted the disease is recommended by experts in the health department. Sleeping and living rooms should be well ventilated to prevent its spread as fresh air is apparently influenza's worst enemy.

Grippé or influenza is not a reportable disease under the state law so there is no power of quarantining persons suffering with it. Since 1889 there has been only one severe outbreak in Fulton county and that was in 1909. Old people seem less susceptible to it, although departmental experts who investigated the 1909 attack say it is distinctly contagious. Symptoms of the worst form are sudden and severe headache, abdominal distress and slight jaundice.

Former epidemics have shown that grippé is the most rapid spreading disease of which there is any medical knowledge. The last great epidemic started in Hong Kong in 1888. It quickly spread to St. Petersburg and from there through Germany, Austria and France. It appeared in the United States in 1889 and quickly swept through the entire country.

DECIDE MAKER OF WILL SANE

Wearing Three Pairs of Trousers at One Time no Proof of Insanity Clock around Neck no Sign either.

A jury in the Baltimore city court before Judge Gorter has sustained the will of William Cohen, formerly of Highfield. The will had been attacked by Rachel Cohen, Rebecca Cohen and Rose Resnick, nieces of Mr. Cohen on the ground of alleged insanity.

The result of the contest is that the terms of the will will be carried out. Under the will the entire estate, said to be worth about $75,000, goes to the widow of the testator, Mrs. Amalie Cohen.

The trial of the case lasted more than a week and testimony was given to certain peculiarities of Mr. Cohen. Among those enumerated were that he was seen to wear an alarm clock about his neck, that he had been seen to wear feathers in his hat and hair, on one occasion had on three pairs of trousers and that he was seen to wear his coat buttoned down the back with his collar and tie on backwards. Before the case ended it had narrowed itself down to one single issue, whether Mr. Cohen was mentally competent at the time the will was made, to execute a valid will.

The jury, after about 45 minutes' deliberation, brought in a verdict to the effect that Mr. Cohen was capable of making a valid will and sustained the document.

NO "SAFETY FIRST"

Grange Against Arming to Resist an Invasion.

Resolutions and suggestions destined to better the living conditions on Pennsylvania farms were the chief consideration Tuesday at the opening session of the forty third annual convention of the grangers at State College. When the patrons of husbandry formally opened the meeting behind closed doors, John A. McSparran, of Lancaster county, State master, read his yearly report, which outlined the progressive program for the coming year. Mr. McSparran discussed, under separate heads, railroads, national preparedness, co-operative buying, grange insurance, rural mail routes, legislation, national politics, rural credit education and various phases of grange work.

The State master came out strongly against the "preparedness" policy, and later the peace committee offered a strong resolution calling upon the State Grange to oppose any addition to the United States Army and Navy, except such as is needed to keep them up to the present strength. It was set forth that the American people are now at peace with the world, and desire to remain so, and that it would be un-American and a shameful waste of men and money to prepare for war. According to the resolution, preparedness would hasten rather than delay trouble with foreign countries.

"It looks to me as though this noise about preparedness for defense was more of a blind than any real promulgation of a policy," declared Master McSparran. "It savors of an excuse for a do-nothing Congress in regard to the great constructive questions, such as rural credits and economic distribution of commodities on the one hand, and on the other as an excuse for the collection of larger amounts of taxes from the people of this country. But whatever may be the motive, it should be met with the strongest opposition that the peace-loving people of this nation can bring to bear upon it."

Dr. J. L. Prevost, a member of Chester Valley Grange, wanted the city people, who have been solicitous that the farmer should become more efficient in his business, to do a little organizing on their own account. He offered a suggestion that the City of Philadelphia be the first of the municipalities requested to look into its distribution of farm products, and he asked that Clarence Sears Kates, of Philadelphia, make the arrangements.

NOTED 'EDUCATOR TAKEN BY DEATH

Dr. Spahr, Known here, Dies at his Home in Lancaster. Deaths Near the County. The Funerals. Rev. Mr. Felton's Funeral Thursday.

Rev. Dr. John S. Stahr, president of the general synod of the Reformed church of the United States and former president of Franklin and Marshall college, well known among local members of the Reformed church, and in college circles, died in his home at Lancaster, Tuesday night, from infirmities incident to old age. He was made professor emeritus of the college several years ago, and was honored by the general synod in 1914. He was 74 years old.

Rev. Dr. Stahr was born in Bucks county, and was graduated from Franklin and Marshall college in 1867. He was appointed assistant professor shortly afterward and retained this position four years, after which he took up theology under Dr. J. Williamson Nevin, of Reading. He was ordained in 1872 and served a year as assistant to Rev. Mr. Bausman, rector of the First Reformed church in that city.

In 1872 Dr. Stahr became professor of sciences in Franklin and Marshall and taught in that department for eighteen years. He became president of the institution in 1890 and held that position until his retirement six years ago. Dr. Stahr is survived by an invalid wife, a son and two daughters.

MRS. PETER LITTLE

Mrs. Elizabeth Little, 81 years old, widow of Peter Little, died Saturday morning shortly before 12 o'clock at the family residence in York.

Mrs. Little is survived by seven daughters, Mrs. John Simmons, Mrs. William Reisinger, Mrs. Joseph Gleason, Mrs. Aaron Petry, Mrs. Bert Randall and Misses Ella and Gertie Little, all of York. Two brothers, John Kuhn, of New Oxford, and Joseph Kuhn, of McSherrytown, also survive.

The funeral was held Tuesday in York. Six grandsons of Mrs. Little acted as pallbearers.

FUNERAL

The body of Rev. E. Felton, who died suddenly in Baltimore on Monday evening was brought this morning to the home of the Misses Kise, Carlisle street from where the funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 1:30. It will be conducted by Dr. Luther Kuhlman, a college classmate and roommate of Rev. Mr. Felton. Dr. Kuhlman will be assisted by Dr. T. J. Barkley. The interment in Evergreen Cemetery will be private.

JACOB SHARF

Jacob Sharf died at his home in Mt. Holly Springs, Monday evening, aged 74 years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge of Newville for 39 years.

He leaves his wife and two children, Mrs. William Wise, of Lemoyne, and Joseph J. Sharf, of Harrisburg.

Funeral services at the house Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, interment in the Mt. Holly cemetery.

DAWN SERVICES

Two Churches will Greet Christmas Morning with Songs.

A dawn service will be held in St. James Lutheran church on Christmas at six o'clock. It will be in charge of Dr. J. A. Clutz, and Rev. F. E. Taylor of the Presbyterian church will make a short address. There will be a fifteen minute trombone recital from the church belfry before the beginning of the dawn service, the Christmas hymns being played.

There will also be a dawn service at the same hour in the Methodist church.

KILLED IN FALL FROM BIG STACK

Cable Breaks and Young Man is Thrown to Ground More than Fifty Feet below. Dies in Hospital after Short Time.

Robert J. Krous, of near Woodbine, York County, died Tuesday evening in the West Side Sanitarium, York, of a fractured skull, internal injuries, and a broken leg, sustained several hours earlier, when the cable by which he was being hoisted to the top of a 100-foot smokestack broke and caused him to fall a distance of about 42 feet to the top of a brick boiler casing and then 12 feet to the ground. The accident occurred at Railroad.

Besides the injuries that resulted in death he also sustained a fracture of the nose, a three inch scalp wound, a laceration on the nose and a gash on the left cheek.

Within a few minutes after the accident the injured man was being hurried to York.

Mr. Krous was employed by the Coatesville Boiler works, which had completed the erection of the stack and installation of a boiler at the J. S. Young company flanne factory. The painting on the stack was to have been completed to-day. Krous by the aid of a wire cable running up the inside of the stack, attached to a pulley at the top, was being hoisted on the outside. When he had reached about half way to the top the cable broke. It is believed that he alighted on the boiler house on his feet, but in the fall to the ground struck on his head.

W. A. Detwiler, foreman for the Coatesville firm, and W. T. Stewart, Enfield, N. C., another workman of the firm, who were hauling Krous to the top, picked him up. He was unconscious and his right leg was broken below the knee.

The work on the stack was to have been completed Tuesday, and the gang of workmen, which also included H. C. Pryer, Enfield, N. C., were to have left for Beaver Falls. Owing to the accident work on painting the stack was abandoned for the day.

The dead workman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Krous, living in Lower Chanceford township. Besides his parents he is survived by several brothers and sisters.

HAIG YOUNGEST OF BRITISH GENERALS

Sir John French's Successor
Is Popular In England.

HAS HAD A NOTABLE CAREER

Has Been Praised by Sir John For Ability in Carrying Out Orders, Especially During the Battle of Loos. Reverse Due to Failure of Subordinates to Carry Out His Orders.

Following are the most interesting facts about Sir Douglas Haig, the new commander of the British forces in France:
+ He is fifty-four years old, the youngest general ever placed in complete charge of an English army in France.
+ He was born in County Fife.
+ He is tall, powerfully built and almost overbearing in manner.
+ He is the author of several books on tactics and is considered one of England's most thoroughly trained soldiers.
+ He first gained distinction in this war for his valor in the battle of Loos.
+ He is a favorite of the royal family.

Field Marshal Sir John French, after sixteen months in a command which included the mightiest armies Great Britain ever put in the field, at last has been succeeded by a general who has spent most of his own active career under Sir John's command and who probably has been praised more highly by Sir John himself than by any one else.

The news that Sir Douglas Haig had succeeded Sir John French as commander in chief of the British armies in France and Flanders probably came as no surprise in Great Britain, where precisely this change had been forecast for months, and open predictions had been made—although none of them ever got past the censor to America—that Sir John soon would be out and Sir Douglas in.

Predictions Known to French.

These predictions were made long before the battle of Loos and cannot have been unknown to Sir John, but the retiring chieftain none the less trusted Sir Douglas with command of the attacking forces in that battle and gave him unstinted praise for the manner in which the trust was performed.

The contrast between the two men is marked in many ways. Sir John is sixty-three years old, of Irish descent, though born in Kent, a short, sturdy, white haired, cheerful soul who won his greatest laurels as a daring and audacious cavalry leader. "The Phil Sheridan of the British army," he has been called.

Sir Douglas is fifty-four, the youngest of all the generals who in the present war have been entrusted with command of a British army, a Scotsman, born in County Fife, tall, powerfully built, dour and masterful, almost overbearing in his manner and so close a student of his profession that before the war he was generally nicknamed "Von Haig" by his fellows. He also has served most of his career in the cavalry, the one arm of the service that has had the least employment since August, 1914. He is, however, the author of several works on tactics and is considered one of the most thoroughly trained soldiers in England as well as the most unsparring driver of his subordinates.

Favored by Royalty.
Sir Douglas also has been known as a royal favorite. His wife, Lady Haig, was Miss Dorothy Vivian, favorite maid of honor of Queen Alexandra. The late King Edward as a special mark of favor to Sir Douglas not only permitted the marriage ceremony to be performed in Buckingham palace, but attended in person with Queen Alexandra and afterward gave a luncheon in honor of the bride.

Sir Douglas has stood as high in the good graces of King George as in those of his father. During the months immediately preceding his appointment to command the first army he served as special aide camp to the king.

Sir Douglas was in command of the attacking forces of the British at the battle of Neuve Chapelle, which, beginning as a brilliant success for the British, was transformed into something very near a disaster by the breakdown of the organization, the failure of reserves to get up and general confusion, which resulted in the shelling of their own men by British artillery.

Absolved by French.
Sir John French, however, in his report took great pains to absolve Sir Douglas of all blame for these blunders, saying: "I am of the opinion that this delay (in getting up reserves and straightening out the disordered regiments, which proved fatal to the further advance of the British) would not have occurred had the clearly expressed order of the general officer commanding the first army been more carefully observed."

A little later in his report, moreover, Sir John said: "I consider that the able and skilful dispositions which were made by the general officer commanding the first army contributed largely to the defeat of the enemy and to the capture of his position. The energy and vigor with which Sir Douglas Haig handled his command show him to be a leader of great ability and power."

INSECT MARVELS.

What the Hop Aphid Unchecked Would Do in One Year.

Few persons, writes James Buckland in a report of the Smithsonian institution, realize how enormous is the number of insect species or how amazing is their power of multiplication. The number of insect species is greater by far than that of the species of all other living creatures combined. More than 300,000 have been described, and probably twice that number remain to be examined. Virtually all living animals, as well as most plants, supply food for these innumerable hordes. The fecundity of certain insect forms is astounding.

Riley once computed that the progeny of the hop aphid, which sees thirteen generations born to it in a single year, would, if unchecked to the end of the twelfth generation, multiply to the inconceivable number of ten sextillions of individuals. Supplementing that calculation, Forbush says that if this brood were marshaled in line, ten to the inch, it would extend to a point so sunk in the profundity of space that light from the head of the procession, traveling at the rate of 184,000 miles a second, would take 2,500 years to reach the earth.

Kirkland has computed that in eight years the progeny of one pair of gypsy moths could destroy all the foliage in the United States. A Canadian entomologist declares that in one season the descendants of a pair of potato bugs would, if unchecked, number 60,000,000.

The voracity of insects is almost as astounding as their power of reproduction. The daily ration in leaves of a caterpillar is equal to twice its own weight. If a horse were to eat as much he would require a ton of hay every twenty-four hours. Forbush says that a certain flesh eating larva will consume in twenty-four hours 200 times its original weight. A human child, to do as well, would have to eat in the first day of its life 1,500 pounds of beef. Trouvelot, who made a special study of the subject, affirms that the food taken by a single silkworm in fifty-six days equals 86,000 times its original weight at hatching. What destruction this one insect would cause if even a one-hundredth part of its eggs ever hatched! The facts show how great is the value to man of the insect eating birds.

WINGS OF A BIRD.

Compared to Them Flying Machines Planes Are but Toys.

Although the bird traveler has no trunk to pack, guidebook to study or ticket to buy, still he must make some preparations for the journey.

The warbler, which nests in Alaska and passes the winter in northern South America, should not begin an 8,000 mile voyage through the air over mountains, plains and seas unless its engine is in good order and it has a proper supply of fuel.

"But," you ask, "what is a bird's engine, and where does it carry fuel?"
A bird's engine is really its wings and the muscles which move them. It is one of the most perfect engines in the world. It is simple, but strong. It works easily, but it is powerful and rarely gets out of order.

For many years man tried to make flying machines which should have wings like those of birds. But he never succeeded. He could not make even a feather! Finally he discovered that if he would make a machine that would fly he must give it wings and an engine. So he constructed an aeroplane, which has wide, stiff wings, or "planes," measuring about thirty feet from tip to tip. These wings cannot be flapped, and in themselves they furnish no power. But to them man added an engine driven by gasoline and electricity. This engine turns a long bladed propeller, which urges the aeroplane forward, while the planes support it when it is in motion.

But a bird's wing, we must remember, is both plane and engine. It gives support as well as power. It is therefore a far more remarkable machine than the one made by man.—Frank M. Chapman in St. Nicholas.

Water Colors.

Water color painting was gradually raised from the hard, dry style of the eighteenth century to its present brilliancy by the efforts of Nicholson, Copley, Sanley and others. The Water Color society's exhibitions began in 1805 and may be said to mark the real beginning of modern water color painting. The great master, if not creator, of the art was the celebrated Turner, of whom we read so much in the works of John Ruskin.—Exchange.

COAST IS OPEN TO FOE, SAYS DEWEY

Navy Equal to Strongest Enemy Needed, Admiral Asserts.

MANY CITIES EASY TO TAKE

"With Such a Navy Enemy Would Not Attempt Invasion as Long as It Remained in Existence"—Continuing. He Says Long Island Is a Vantage Point For Any Invader.

Only an adequate navy can prevent a hostile force from landing at will upon the Atlantic coast, according to Admiral George Dewey, president of the general board of the navy.

In a letter to Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts Admiral Dewey says:

"Hon. A. P. Gardner, House of Representatives, Washington:
"Dear Mr. Gardner—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Dec. 9, asking me to write you, setting forth my views on the question of the possibility of large hostile forces landing on our coast and inviting my attention to an article by Eric Fisher Wood.

"The part of the Atlantic coast mentioned in Mr. Wood's article extends from Eastport, Me., to Cape Henry, Va., and in this area we have permanent defenses on the Penobscot and Kennebec rivers; at Portland, Portsmouth, Boston and New Bedford harbors; at Narragansett Bay; at the eastern entrance to Long Island sound; at the entrance to New York harbor; on the Delaware river; at Baltimore; on the upper Potomac river and at Hampton Roads.

"Of the defenses only those at Portland, Narragansett Bay, entrance to Long Island sound and the entrance to New York harbor the coast; the others are solely harbor defenses.

Easy For Troops to Land.

"It is true that a large hostile force can land on the open coast wherever the transports can get within a reasonable distance of the shore, especially so where their landing is covered by the gunfire of the naval escort, even though the landing be opposed by troops.

"The most recent example of this is the landing of the allied troops on the Gallipoli peninsula. We have similar examples in our own history, as the landing of Scott's army near Vera Cruz, the landings near Fort Fisher and the landing of Shafter's army in Cuba.

"From Eastport, Me., to Cape Henry, Va., there are but very few places where large ships cannot approach with safety to within two miles of the coast, and the extent of this shore line that is too precipitous or too ragged to make a landing practicable is small. The only force that can prevent such a landing is a navy of our own strong enough to prevent such an expedition from reaching our coast.

"In saying that a hostile expedition can land upon our coast at will outside the range of our coast defense guns, I mean that it is physically possible and with no very great difficulty. I do not mean that such a force could accomplish its object by landing anywhere on our coast.

Many Good Landing Places.

"No commander would desire to have his force isolated on the peninsula of Maine nor on the sand dunes of New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland or Virginia, with inland waters between it and the mainland. They will prefer to land where there are railroads and good roads leading to their objective, which would probably be one of our large cities. Such places are numerous along the coast of Massachusetts, both shores of Massachusetts bay, the eastern end and south shore of Long Island and in the Delaware and Chesapeake bays.

"A landing place sheltered from the force of the sea would greatly facilitate the disembarkation of a hostile force, but is not a vital necessity. Such sheltered places are too numerous to name, but are everywhere. They are Frenchman's bay, Penobscot bay, Blue Hill bay, Sheepscot river, Casco bay in Maine, Rockport, Gloucester, Salem, Plymouth, Provincetown, Vineyard sound and Buzzards bay in Massachusetts, Fort Pond bay and then, to the southward, Delaware and Chesapeake bays.

Strong Navy the Need.

"Only the navy can prevent landings at those places, and that navy must be strong enough to defeat the enemy. Should we have such a navy the enemy would not attempt an invasion as long as it remained in existence.

"Our main defense and protection from invasion must always rest with the navy, which must ever remain our first and best line of defense. This defense, unless adequate, is impotent, and, as before stated, adequacy is not reached until the navy is strong enough to meet on equal terms the navy of the strongest probable adversary. Sincerely yours, GEORGE DEWEY."

HELPING THE PRESIDENT.

John Cheerfully Backed McKinley in a Diplomatic Crisis.

At the time of the Boxer rebellion President McKinley was taking a needed rest at his home in Canton, O. The long distance telephone was situated between two windows running to the floor of the room. Under one of them, projecting from the foundation of the house, was a faucet of water to the lawn. One morning the president was called to the long distance telephone by Secretaries Hay and Root. A message had been received in Washington from the czar of all the Russias and the German emperor. It requested that the president of the United States should place the American soldiers under the command of Count Waldersee, the German general, in order to insure harmony of action on the part of the allied armies.

There was some paving going on in the street opposite the house, and as the day was warm the workmen became thirsty, so one of their number was sent for water. While the chief executive was consulting with his secretaries concerning this important matter over the telephone, John walked up, hung his pall on the faucet and turned on the water. The water running into the pall made a great deal of noise and disturbed the president, the windows being open. He asked his secretaries to wait a moment, and then, leaning forward and looking out of the window, said:

"John, that water running in the pall makes a very disturbing noise, and I am busy talking over the long distance telephone. Please turn it off for a few moments."

"All right, major," replied John, and turning off the water he filled his pipe and lit it, and then, sitting down with his back to the house, listened to the conversation which the president was carrying on.

Here was the ruler of a hundred millions of people engaged in the transaction of most important and serious public business, and there was a common laborer intruding himself into the transaction, but McKinley was not impatient, nor did he resent this interference. He dictated to his secretaries over the telephone the reply, consenting that the American troops should be placed under the command of the German general on the condition that this government at any time reserved the right to revoke the permission, provided the policy of the army so commanded ran in any way counter to the ideas of the United States.

Having dictated this important dispatch, the president hung up the receiver.

"John," he said, "I am through now, and you can turn on the water again." John did so, and then, leaning on the window sill, said:

"Major, I hope you are going to settle that Chinese question all right. You don't need to be too darn yielding, for all of us boys are behind you."—New York Times.

Inspiration in Dreams.

Coleridge must be added to the list of authors who have found inspiration in dreams, for he himself has told us that he composed over 200 lines of the "Kubla Khan" during a sleep of three hours. On awaking he wrote down the fragment now existing, but the interruption of a visitor banished the rest from his mind. The first idea of "The Ancient Mariner," too, was suggested to the poet by a dream of his friend Crinkshaw. And Kipling's "Greatest Story in the World" was but the half remembered dream of a commonplace young man.—London Mail.

What Makes Mirrors Reflect?

Mirrors that are made of glass have metal placed on one side of the glass. The light will pass through the glass, but will not pass through the metal backing. Light has the property of bounding from a surface that it cannot penetrate, the same as a ball would when thrown against a surface that it cannot penetrate. The light passes through the glass of the mirror, meets the metal backing and then bounces from it. This bounding of the light from the metal surface is called reflection, and mirrors are said to reflect.—St. Nicholas.

A German Legend.

The Germans have a legend of Frederick Barbarossa that he is not dead, but in an enchanted sleep, sitting with his knights at a marble table in the cavern of Kyffhausen, in the Harz mountains. His long red beard has grown during this long enchantment and, covering the table, descends to the floor, and he sits thus waiting the moment that will set him free. There he has been kept for long centuries. There he must stay for ages.

One of a Pair.

The applicant for the post of butler seemed somewhat dense, but in other respects fairly suitable. Almost as an after thought the mistress of the house put a final query. "I suppose you are a single man?" she asked.

"Er—er—no, mum," he stammered. "I'm twins!"—London Opinion.

WHEN YOU GET ANGRY.

Influence of the Emotion Upon the Adrenal Glands.

Just above the kidneys are two small glands, each about as big as a pea, known as suprarenal capsules or adrenal glands. They belong to that small group of glands in our bodies which have no ducts and whose secretions, whatever they are, pass directly into the blood. These two little glands play an enormous part in the physiology of hate.

The secretion of these little glands is called adrenalin, and its secretion cannot be controlled by the will. When it is poured into the blood the amount of sugar in the blood will rise in the course of a few minutes between 10 and 30 per cent.

A strong emotion, such as hate, causes an increased secretion of adrenalin in the glands and simultaneously an increase of sugar in the blood, and this sudden accession of sugar supplies the muscles with a much needed food. So that one of the effects of the secretion of adrenalin would be a direct benefit to a man in a rage wishing to exercise stern muscular effort involving fight, conflict or struggle. It has been proved that the removal of the adrenal glands has a weakening effect on muscular power, and an injection of adrenalin has an invigorating effect, and not only does adrenalin bring out sugar from the liver stock to feed the muscles, but it also restores fatigued muscles, at least temporarily.

Men in a state of hatred, therefore, are in the same condition as men who are putting out their utmost physical effort. They are in a condition, should they come across the object of their hate, to exert the maximum harm upon it.—New York American.

NEW U. S. COAST GUNS TO BE MOUNTED ON MOBILE PLATFORMS

Sixteen Inch Cannon Will Sink Dreadnaught Fleet at the Horizon.

Can Be Hurried From Point to Point In Case of Attack by Foreign Foe.

A PLAN to revolutionize the coast defense fortifications of the United States is now being considered by government experts in a series of conferences. The discussion includes a plan to abolish concrete emplacements for the huge defense guns. It is proposed to mount these upon mobile platforms.

Only guns of the largest caliber—sixteen inch—of the highest velocity, are being considered.

The use of caterpillar wheels for moving these great guns within limited areas is but a minor part of the general plan.

The experts are now working out details by which these guns may be moved from point to point along the entire seacoast. It is provided that they be assembled in batteries of six at the most likely point of attack at the time of alarm. Under the plan suggested the guns can be moved from their fort stations to points where needed with amazing speed.

The discussion has proceeded to the velocity, and the area of damage increases in ratio.

Ordinance experts have argued that the most effective firing of the new "thirty-fives" is at that range which will keep the enemy navy, where his observation of his own fire is impossible. The maximum range will not be considered as material in such firing. The limit of the horizon, governed by the conditions of each occasion, will determine.

For purposes of perforation of armor of the enemy the range will be much increased over the firing for "racking" explosive effect. The twelve inch gun will perforate armor plate at 9,000 yards, the modern fourteen inch gun at 15,000 yards and the sixteen inch gun at 18,000 yards.

To Hold Off Dreadnaughts.

The council has produced advocates of both methods of defensive firing. The new "35's" are to be equipped for both armor piercing and contact shells. If conditions do not warrant the conlence the straits fortification are in England's sealed books.

The United States experts were not even able to get an accurate line upon the North sea battle between the British Lion and Tiger and German cruisers in which the Bluecher was sunk.

The Lion and Tiger used 15.5 inch guns. That the United States knows, The British reports, if true, show that hits were registered when the ships were fighting 17,000 yards apart, or below the horizon.

United States authorities do not believe his were registered at that distance. They learned "somewhere in France" that wireless communication between the seaplanes and the British battleships in that engagement proved impracticable. The seaplanes established a perfunctory communication by use of smoke bombs and other signals only.

The United States army experts marveled at the quick destruction of the fortifications at Namur and Liege. They knew that the Germans were taking credit from the Austrians, for it was the Austrian Skoda howitzers that did the work.

But the marveling of our experts turned to astonishment when they found that these same howitzers failed to accomplish in six weeks on the Russian front what had been done in two days in Belgium. Marshal von Hindenburg reported one battery as "destroyed" seventeen times.

By expensive and diligent inquiry the United States army officers finally found the answer in a sand pile.

PRESENTS BOUGHT FOR SHOW

Exploiting One's Own Vanity in Bestowal of Gifts is Poor Policy.

The most miserable Christmas present, the kind that no human being is rich enough to afford, is that which is bought to make a show, to exploit one's own vanity.

When you are tempted to buy a "show off" present, remember that the recipient has some rights. One who understands will be made unhappy by that kind of gift. You know yourself that when you receive a present that represents a great sacrifice on the part of the giver it makes you feel miserable, even when the right spirit is behind it.

The cost in money is about the poorest of measures for any kind of a gift. The thoughtfulness in it, the recognition of a desire for things unasked for, the affection that goes with it, counts for much more. Every Christmas each of us receives a message that means more than the most expensive gift. Yet we forget that sometimes in the perplexing selection of presents for others—Woman's Home Companion.

DIARY FOR CHRISTMAS GIFT

Peculiar but Pleasing Remembrance Showing Absent Friend Was in Mind of Donor.

On Thanksgiving day a man sat down and began to write to a distant friend. But he wrote only a few lines, and laid it aside. The next day he took up the pen, put down the new date, diary-fashion, and wrote some item of news of interest to them both.

So each day from Thanksgiving till Christmas he added something to the letter, as he would in a diary, ending and mailing it just in time to reach his friend on Christmas morning. At the top he had written this message:

"This is all the gift you get from me this year; but it carries more thought of you and more love, I imagine, than do some more costly ones I am sending. But just put it in your pocket for a dull January day. It will keep."

And this was a letter from a man to a man! Damon and Pythias, David and Jonathan still live in our prosaic American business world—Mother's Magazine.

Accidents in Football.

Fatalities in football are almost invariably due to inexperience and lack of condition. Nobody ever heard of a player on Walter Camp's All-Star team being seriously injured or, for that matter, even slightly injured.

stage of drafting plans for sectional railways to be laid down within a few hours to transport these monsters across country, from one trunk railway to another.

The plan calls for co-operation by all of the principal railroads along the Atlantic seaboard. These corporations are to be asked for data at the earliest moment to show what reconstruction and strengthening of bridges are necessary to make safe and sure the safe and rapid movement of these great cannon.

The twelve and fourteen inch batteries which now defend the coast harbors will not be disturbed. They are relied upon in this discussion as the support for the huge traveling batteries.

Power of Big Guns.

The sixteen inch gun now at Sandy Hook proving grounds, the only one owned by the United States, is fifteen years old. It is obsolete and has no further consideration in this story.

The sixteen inch guns which it is proposed to mount as movable batteries are to be new and modern guns. They are not "sixteen inch" guns to the army. Artillery officers call them "thirty-fives."

They propel a charge which, if squarely placed, will sink the largest dreadnaught at the edge of the horizon. The shell will strike the dreadnaught while traveling at nearly 3,000 feet per second. The charge, weighing 2,500 pounds, is guaranteed by the experts to be a much higher explosive than gun cotton.

The fourteen inch guns along our coast fire a 1,600 pound projectile at the rate of 2,250 feet per second. They have a maximum range of 18,000 yards—ten miles—and, theoretically, will pierce 11.2 armor plate at 15,000 yards.

The maximum range of the new "thirty-fives" could only be reached by firing the gun at an angle of forty-five degrees. In actual service the gun is rarely elevated over twenty degrees. The lower the elevation the greater the tion of one defense the other may be alternated or entirely substituted.

The discussion now in progress has developed the fact that man has not built and cannot build a rigid land fortification that will withstand rapid fire broadsides of an enemy fleet using ten six-inch guns at a broadside at a range of 6,000 to 7,000 yards.

Once the enemy gets "in underneath" the big caliber guns the fortification is doomed.

This developed the idea for the movable "35's." It is proved by calculations that an enemy squadron of super-dreadnaughts armed with 15.5 guns of the Queen Elizabeth class could be held at bay by batteries of "35's."

The ordinance experts show to a certainty that the enemy must sacrifice at least one superdreadnaught before it can arrive within effective range of a fortification protected by "35's." The moment that an enemy ship shows on the horizon it can be "plotted" as a target by the "35's." And the sole effectiveness of the reply by the enemy must be based upon locating and disabling the concealed monster.

It has been revealed that the United States government has little official data of the results achieved by the European armies now in conflict. United States observers came home almost empty handed. A few were allowed to mingle with the German and Austrian troops for a few months, but they were kept away from all that was worth while.

Information Withheld.

Only on the western front were they received with even simulated welcome by the allies. They met a lot of officers. But they did not learn anything. Information which they considered pertinent was withheld.

For instance, the United States army has not been able to ascertain many facts about the results of the fire between the allied navy and the Turkish forts at the Dardanelles. The accomplishments of the 15.5 inch guns on the Queen Elizabeth in her attempt to si-would not withstand high explosives fired from beyond their range.

The Russians, profiting by the lesson, built parapets of sand bags high in front of their batteries. Then hundreds of men shoveled loose sand squarely in front of the parapet.

The United States learned that the battery which von Hindenburg sixteen times "destroyed" was actually buried in sand that number of times. But it was always dug out and moved to another place, where a similar sand pile had been prepared.

The 42 centimeter shells would not explode in a sand pile. Many sand piles are now sheltering our coast defenses.

The United States has learned from the European war that the turret is a protection needed only against indirect fire. It is now being utilized in an entirely new manner by our coast defenders. But the secret is buried and will not come out unless we are engaged by an enemy. Whether it has reached its new perfection in our continental or insular defenses is a closely guarded secret.

Where the enemy's artillery is successfully concealed, the United States arbiters have determined that turret protection is absolutely required. It may be decided, as the result of the conferences now proceeding, to protect several of our largest batteries in this manner.

The insular coast defenses of the United States are declared to be in very good condition. Equipped with the most modern ideas, the Panama canal may be considered adequately protected. The work in the Philippines and at Honolulu is progressing satisfactorily to the ordinance experts.

The construction of the proposed movable "35's" is extremely costly. The details are being worked out in shape that can be presented to the American public. The carriage costs half as much as the gun itself. But the wide radius of operation thus provided is regarded as amply justifying the expense.

DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs. Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat. Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without alcohol or drugs.

The Best That Could Be Done Under the Circumstances

By F. A. MITCHEL

Margaret Brierley was brought up by a couple of maiden aunts, sisters, who were well off and intended that after their death Margaret should have their belongings. These were in part a comfortable house and grounds in the village, in which they lived. Margaret proved an apt scholar and was graduated with honor. Since life with her aunts was very dull she yearned for something livelier. After a year of "sitting around holding her hands," as she expressed it, she determined to go to the city to teach.

Her aunts combated her resolution. They reminded her that they had cared for her since she was an infant, educated her and given her everything she wanted. All in vain. One morning when Aunt Sarah went into her room to awaken her the bird had flown. Three years passed, during which there was no communication between the aunts and the niece. Margaret was getting on well as a teacher when she fell ill. Having no means to provide a substitute for her school duties, she was dropped from the salary roll. Then the poor girl began to regret that she had yielded to the impulse to be independent. Nothing remained for her but to go back to her aunts and ask their forgiveness and help.

Taking advantage of a slight rally, she spent her last funds for a railway ticket to her former home. She arrived at the house as darkness was falling. How comfortable everything looked! There were the dainty white house, the porch and lattice covered with vines, the flower garden to one side, the kitchen garden in the rear, the whole inclosed by the low picket fence. She went as fast as her condition would permit up the walk, opened the door and entered. All was still.

"Aunt Elizabeth!" she called, with no reply.

"Aunt Sarah!" Still no answer. She went through the house, but found no one. Thinking that her aunts had gone out, she took off her wraps and sat down in the living room before the open fireplace, in which were live coals.

Presently she heard the front door open and shut. She arose, intending to greet her aunts. Instead a young man entered. Seeing her, he paused.

"Where are my aunts, Misses Elizabeth and Sarah Stacey?"

"Are you Margaret Brierley?"

"I am."

"Miss Elizabeth died a few months ago, and Miss Sarah followed her in two weeks."

Margaret sank back in her chair and covered her face with her hands. It was some time before she spoke again; then she said:

"Who lives here now?"

"I do. I am Roger Blackmore, a distant connection of the two ladies. They made me their heir."

"What shall I do?" moaned Margaret, forgetful of the presence of another.

"Have you not been successful?"

"I am ill and without a cent in the world."

"You are welcome to remain here as long as you like. I will leave you and send some one to take care of you."

"What claim have I on you?"

"I will show you."

Going to a desk, he took out a paper and handed it to her. It was the will of her aunts, leaving all they possessed to him. There was a clause stating that if their beloved niece, Margaret Duncan, ever returned in need it was their desire that the said Roger Blackmore should relieve her wants. She looked up at the heir.

"How can you relieve the wants of a woman near your own age without?"

"I think your aunts were mindful of that."

"Then why this request?"

"Perhaps they fancied—"

"What?"

"That we might pool our issues?"

"Pool our issues! What do you mean?"

"Marriage."

Margaret made no reply to this. She felt that she would be willing to marry Polyphemus for a home and rest. Presently she arose slowly and with difficulty.

"Where are you going?" asked Blackmore.

"I don't know. I can't stay here."

He went to her and gently forced her back in her chair. "The good ladies," he said, "told me that if you failed in your work they would be glad if you and I could occupy their old home and enjoy their income together."

Margaret sat silent for awhile, then looking up at him, said:

"As for me, I can do nothing else. It remains for you to decide whether or no you care to accord with the wish expressed."

Without reply he left her and went to the telephone booth. She heard him ask: "Is the Rev. Mr. Stark at home? Tell him to come to the Stacey place immediately." Then, returning to her, he said: "You can't leave here in your present condition. If I permitted you to do so your aunts would turn in their graves. You can't stay here alone, and I can't stay with you without scandal. You'll have to take my unworthy self. It's hard luck for you, but it can't be helped."

She put out her hand to him, and he bent down and kissed her.

The parson came, and all was well.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

Keep Her Locks Dark, Thick, Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

CRAB MEAT COCKTAIL.—Fill cocktail glasses with fresh crab meat and cover with the following dressing: One teaspoonful of freshly grated horseradish, one tablespoonful of tomato ketchup, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of tabasco and seasoning to taste. Mix well and pour over cocktails.

Kidney In Bacon.—Cut six thin slices of bacon about six or eight inches long. Mix in a basin one teaspoonful each of chopped onion and parsley, add one tablespoonful of breadcrumbs, a pinch of nutmeg, pepper and grated lemon rind. Sprinkle the bacon with it, put a kidney on each slice and roll it round them, tie with a piece of string and bake in a hot oven, or cook in a frying pan for a few minutes. Serve very hot.

Tomato Cocktail.—Select firm ripe tomatoes. Put them into a wire basket and plunge into boiling water for a moment; remove the skins. Put aside in the refrigerator until very cold. At serving time cut into cubes, season with salt and pepper and add enough mayonnaise dressing to cover the tomatoes. Serve very cold in tall glasses or small glass cups. Sprinkle a little chopped parsley over the top of each.

Beef Olives.—Cut slices of leftover roast beef very thin. Spread each slice with the following mixture: Breadcrumbs, roast beef gravy and chopped parsley. Roll and simmer in gray and water for half an hour.

Oysters With Cheese.—Take a cupful of grated breadcrumbs and brown nicely in a little butter; butter a shallow dish and sprinkle with the breadcrumbs. Drain about three dozen oysters and dry with a clean towel and then season. Place them one by one on the browned breadcrumbs, strew chopped parsley over them and grated Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle lightly with breadcrumbs again and then place in the oven. The layer of breadcrumbs will be brown in about fifteen minutes if the oven is hot enough. Serve with drawn butter and lemon garnish. If desired, a little lemon juice may be poured over the oysters before placing in the oven.

Delicious Pear Pickle.—Chop fine one peck of peeled and cored hard pears, six large onions and four red or green peppers from which the seeds have been removed. Cover with three cupfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful allspice, one teaspoonful cloves, one teaspoonful ground ginger, two heaping tablespoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of mustard seed or ground mustard and one cupful brown sugar. Stir well, bring quickly to a boil and then simmer until all is tender.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a
Day and Be Relieved.

If a few years ago some one had said you could treat catarrh by breathing a charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed and it remained for that eminent investigator, R. T.
Booth, to discover in Hyomei this wonderful method of treatment.

Hyomei has performed almost miraculous results in treating catarrh and is today recognized by thousands of people as the only advertised remedy for catarrh that can be relied upon to do just what it claims. The complete outfit of Hyomei is inexpensive and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe the air of Hyomei through the little inhaler druggists furnish with it for a few minutes four times a day and it will help the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects complete and lasting relief.

In Gettysburg there are scores of well-known people who have been relieved of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not help you Peoples Drug Store will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be afforded as to their faith in this remedy.

A BLOUSE FOR MODISH WOMEN.

The contrasting blouse is asserting itself once more, and this model in a gay rose tone will be charming to wear with the tailored costume this winter.

There were seasons when the modish woman wore a matching blouse with her tailored suit, but the contrasting blouse has asserted itself once more, and it comes in so many attractive designs that it is sure to hold the ground it has gained.

Models trimmed with embroidery are numerous, and Georgette crepe seems the most fashionable as well as the most practical material for their development, since it looks as good as the severe class.

LURE OF CHECKERS

A Game That Has Been Played
For Twenty Centuries.

LONG KNOWN AS "DRAUGHTS."

Plato and Homer Mentioned the Game
In Their Writings, and Many Relics of It Have Been Unearthed From the Tombs of Ancient Egypt.

In the messengers' room of a big industrial plant two boys hovered meditatively over a checkerboard of red and black squares and moved their "men" from square to square with much premeditation. An old man chanced that way and, lured by the contest, stopped and looked on. Taking the liberties of the rights that his years warranted, he suggested a move and was soon absorbed in the game. Another man came by and stopped, and soon there was a group around the silent and intent contestants. The lure of checkers was upon them.

This game in slightly modified forms has exercised its fascination upon the human race for centuries that cannot be counted. "Checkers" is a new name for an ancient game. To English speaking people it was long known as "draughts," and in all the languages of civilized men it has a name. There are variations in the way of playing it, but it is the familiar checkers of our time just the same.

So many things come to light out of the ancient tombs of Egypt that it strikes the modern man as remarkable how many articles they buried with men in those dim, long gone ages, but out of tombs at least twenty centuries old explorers, excavators and tomb breakers have brought forth pieces of checkerboards and the disks which for some reason are called "men." And as such things have been found in tombs that were sealed twenty centuries ago it is possible that some time in very much older tombs explorers may find relics of checkers.

In the British museum one of the exhibits in the Egyptian collection is a board and men of the ancient game which came out of one of those ancient tombs. Some of the oldest of the mural decorations of ancient Egypt depict players engaged at draughts, or whatever the ancient Egyptians may have called the game.

Classic references may be found to draughts. Plato mentioned it and writes that it was the invention of an Egyptian whom he called Hermes Trismegistus, but where and how Plato got the information are not clear. It is very easy to say that such and such a man invented such and such a game, but close investigation usually proves that he hit on some adaptation or variation of a very much older game.

Tracing the genesis of a game of skill or chance usually leads the investigator too far back in the mists of the past to be sure that he has found the correct answer.

This game is also mentioned by Homer, and he records the observation that it was played during the period with which the "Odyssey" deals. There is little doubt that the Greeks played the game and that at a later period the Romans played a variant of it, which they called "ludunculi."

It was early played through northern Europe and was played there at such a remote period that it was said to have been one of the few things which were not introduced in that region by the Romans.

It was one of the most popular games in Europe during the sixteenth century. In the Library of Congress are several old books treating of the game. Samuel Johnson once wrote a preface to a book on the game of draughts which one William Payne had composed at the expense of much time and effort.

Students of checkers and very old players of the game recall the names of Anderson, an Englishman, and Wylie, "the herd ladle," who were famous checker players about half a century ago. Wylie traveled all over the world playing contests with local checker experts and enthusiasts. Martens, an English player, and two Americans, Yates and Barker, succeeded to the fame of Anderson and Wylie—Washington Star.

Richard Cromwell.
Oliver Cromwell tried to train his son to be a worthy successor as protector, but the attempt was a failure. Richard was easy going and amiable and more addicted to sports than to statecraft. He was the acknowledged lord protector from Sept. 3, 1658, to May 25, 1659, but got little figure as such. He did not relish official duties and much preferred having a good time. The cavaliers called him "Queen Dick," and others still less respectfully spoke of him as "Tumbledown Dick." He was glad to quit when parliament told him to get out. After his abdication, however, he conducted himself with credit and even with dignity. He lived in quiet retirement for fifty-three years and died July 12, 1712, at the ripe old age of ninety.—Argonaut.

The Shrew.
The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defense, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

Be silent or say something better than silence.—Pythagoras.

Football Colors.
The only colors that always win at football are the black and blue.—New York Sun.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Alvah Richards, Champion
High Jumper.

Alvah Richards, holder of the Olympic high jump championship, which he won at Stockholm in 1912, is preparing for the 1916 outdoor season. Richards hopes to break all high jump records before his college career ends and with that idea in view will keep in training throughout the winter. He is a member of the Cornell track and field team, but will take part in only the more important events during the indoor season. Recently Richards was declared ineligible to compete in meets of the central district, Amateur Athletic union. This action was taken by the board of managers because at the meet at Chicago last July his legal place of residence was Provo, Utah, whereas Chicago was given on his entry blank. He was ordered to return the medals he won at that meet. Before going to Cornell Richards was a student at Brigham Young university, Logan, Utah.

Novel Grip For Golf Club.

A golfer walked into a clubmaker's shop recently and left a driver with the request that a grip be put on it. When the professional examined the club he discovered that instead of the ordinary leather grip this ingenious player had placed a rotary brass cylinder where his right hand grasped the club, and he wished a leather grip made in two sections, so that the upper half would hold firm with the left hand while the lower half was free to spin around on the metal cylinder. The explanation offered was that in pressing for a longer ball the player probably unconsciously uses his right hand too much and turns the head of the club over and in, with the result that the ball is "smothered." With this club when the right hand turns over it merely rotates the cylinder, and the club head remains in the correct position for the shot. As a mechanical compensation for a faulty swing it may do much to give the player a fair drive, but the elimination of such a fault as this will never be accomplished by the use of such a club. The idea is clever, but the principle is entirely wrong.—New York Times.

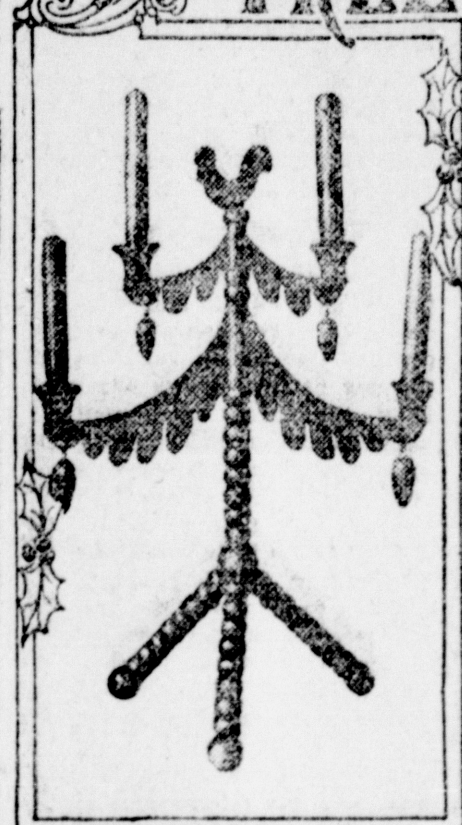

Lawn Tennis Rankings.

The National Lawn Tennis association has officially announced that William M. Johnston of California heads the ranking list of lawn tennis players of this country for the season of 1915. National Champion R. Norris Williams and Maurice E. McLoughlin, who, with Johnston, constitute the "big three," are second and third on the list respectively. Karl H. Behr and Theodore R. Pell, both of New York, are fourth and fifth, while Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston is rated sixth. The west is represented in Clarence J. Griffin for seventh position, while the remaining positions are filled by Watson M. Washburn, George M. Church and Walter Merrill Hall of New York in the order named.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the young Norwegian, is placed No. 1 on the women's ranking list. Mrs. George Wightman of Boston is second and Mrs. Marshall McLean third.

The sugar shortage in France was officially explained to be due to a German surprise attack in the Solsons sector and the use of sugar to defend France from her enemies.

Georges Clemenceau, making public the unusual reason for a dearth of sugar, said that when a surprise attack developed north of Solsons the military authorities, lacking sand sacks to form trench parapets, seized 2,500 tons of sugar and used the bags of sugar.

ONE KIND
CHRISTMAS TREE

In Sweden wooden candelabra like the one in the picture are frequently used instead of Christmas trees for the display of gifts.

Oh, to Have Dwelt in Bethlehem!

O H, to have dwelt in Bethlehem! When the star of the Lord shone bright;

To have sheltered the holy wanderers
On that blessed Christmas night;
To have kissed the tender, was worn feet
Of the mother undressed;
And with reverent wonder and deep delight
To have tended the Holy Child!

Hush! Such a glory was not for thee,
But that once may still be thine,
For are there not little ones still to aid
For the sake of the child divine?
Are there no wandering pilgrims now
To thy heart and thy home to take?
And are there no mothers whose weary hearts
Thou canst comfort for Jesus' sake?
—Adelaide Procter.

Automobile Notes.

Never be in doubt of your lubrication. Oil is cheaper than mechanics. A steaming radiator is always a danger signal. It foretells an overheated engine. If you don't care to buy new cylinders you will do well to remember this. The battery should be inspected every week or ten days. The wise man keeps a record of the factory number of his car, as well as his license number.

TWO CHRISTMAS COOKIES.

In all good, old fashioned German households the hausfrau is very busy for days baking her Christmas cakes. Does it seem to you rather early? No, indeed. It is high time that the Yuletide goodies were being packed in the huge earthenware crocks to stand in the cool storeroom to "mellow." They improve with age, just like fruit cake. Here are a few delicious cookies that are served at festive collards during the holiday season:

CHOCOLATE KISSES.

One pound ground almonds, one pound pulverized sugar, one-half pound sweet chocolate (ground), stiffly beaten whites of eight eggs, juice of one-half lemon.
Stir the sugar into the beaten whites for ten minutes. Add the lemon juice, chocolate and almonds. Drop with a spoon on buttered tins and bake in a very cool oven until crisp to the touch.

HAZELNUT COOKIES.

One-half pound ground hazelnuts, one-half pound ground almonds, one pound pulverized sugar, whites of five eggs.
Beat the whites stiff. Add sugar and stir ten minutes. Take out one-half cup of the mixture to be spread on the top of the cookies just before baking. Roll out the mixture one-quarter inch thick, cut into pretty shapes and bake in a cool oven until the pale fawn color appears.

And Keep Your Christmas Green

Bring in the trailing forest moss,
Bring cedar, fir and pine,
And green festoon and wreath and cross
Around the windows twine.

Against the whiteness of the wall
Be living verdure seen,
Sweet summer memories to recall
And keep your Christmas green.

It is his dear memorial day
Who broke earth's frozen sleep
And who for her hope's gladdening ray
Forever bright will keep.

He gives all loveliness that grows,
The strong and graceful trees,
The winter moss, the fresh June rose—
The dear Lord saves us these.

Who saves us from the piteous wail
Of souls adrift in sin,
So not alone the churches deck,
But peaceful homes within—

Made peaceful by his constant love,
Let thoughts of him abide,
To find us our lost home above
He homeless lived and died.

We keep the bright home festival
And, with a childlike cheer,
His angel ushered birthday call
The merriest of the year.

Yes, merry Christmas let it be,
A day to love and give,
Since every soul's best gift is he
Who came that we might live.

And all things beautiful are his,
And his he maketh ours,
So bring each bud that bursting is,
All Christmas blooming flowers,

All blossoms that in windows shine,
With leaves to light unfurled,
In memory of that Flower Divine
Whose fragrance fills the world.

Be all old customs honored so
That good to others mean,
Bring cross and garland from the snow
And keep your Christmas green.

—Lucy Larcom.

Two Yuletide Sentiments

Your kindness to a poor old lonely widow, or to a child without any one left to love him, your posy of flowers taken with your love to some one who is ill, your letter of kindly thought to parents who have just lost their darling daughter, your words of cheerful greeting to a tired serving maid, your honest hearted attempt to make things easier for mother at home—Christ said he would reckon these as gifts to himself.—Rev. Bernard J. Snel.

Christmas again, with its peace and good will and wonder! How our friends multiply and increase in value as the day of days draws near! How the touch of human hands thrills us and the look in human eyes! To our surprise we are not ashamed to be good, to be kind, to be loving. For this little space out of the long, selfish year we are glad to be ourselves. We give freely of our love; we offer our labor without price, and we speak kindly words that are rarer far than rubies. Once more we take courage and let our hearts have their way, and life laughs and is glad. When Christmas comes the world suddenly grows better, sin less lovely and heaven nearer—and all because a little Boy was born in Bethlehem. Perhaps—who knows—we might carry with us throughout the year the joy of this Christmas living.—Edwin Osgood Grover.

PRESIDENT'S LICENSE TO WED
SIGNED WITH A GOLD PEN.

Gives Mr. Wilson's Age as Fifty-nine,
His Bride Forty-three.

President Wilson's marriage license was issued by the clerk of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. I. H. Hoover, chief usher of the White House, went to the United States courthouse, which old Washingtonians still call the city hall, and obtained the document from W. A. Kroll, assistant marriage license clerk. Mr. Hoover paid the regular fee of $1.

The license gives the age of President Wilson as fifty-nine and that of Mrs. Galt as forty-three years. Both are recorded as having been married before. The license follows:

APPLICATION FOR LICENSE.
No. 12,225.
I, Irwin H. Hoover, applicant for the issuance of a marriage license to the persons named herein, do solemnly swear that the answers to the following interrogations are true to the best of my knowledge and belief, so help me God.

MALE.
Name—Woodrow Wilson.
Age—Fifty-nine.
Color—White.
Relationship—None.
Former Marriages—One; deceased.

FEMALE.
Name—Edith Bolling Galt.
Age—Forty-three.
Color—White.
Relationship—None.
Former Marriages—One; deceased.

Witness, Irwin H. Hoover.
Submitted and sworn to before me this sixteenth day of December, 1915.

JOHN B. YOUNG, Clerk.
By W. A. KROLL, Assistant Clerk.

To—Herbert Scott Smith—authorized to celebrate marriages in the District of Columbia, greeting: You are hereby authorized to celebrate the rites of marriage between Woodrow Wilson of Washington, D. C., and Edith Bolling Galt of Washington, D. C.

You are commanded to make return of the same to the clerk of the supreme court of said district within ten days, and a penalty of fifty dollars ($50) for default therein.

Witnesseth my hand and seal of said court this — day of — anno Domini —
JOHN B. YOUNG, Clerk.
By W. A. KROLL, Assistant Clerk.

"I hope you will convey to the president and Mrs. Galt my sincere wishes for a happy and prosperous future," said Mr. Kroll after he had filled in the blank spaces in the license and received the dollar from Mr. Hoover. Mr. Kroll had provided a gold pen and penholder for the occasion, and after using this for writing in the data furnished by Mr. Hoover he put it aside as a souvenir.

Owens to Umpire.

Brick Owens of Missouri, who risks his life for his country in the capacity of a baseball umpire, will be back in the front rank trench next season working for the American league. Brick received the call three years ago, when he was up for inspection as a National league staff man. Tom Lynch, then president, fired him "for the good of the service." He returned to the association and did so well that Ban Johnson stepped in and signed him.

Trotting Filly Sold.

Anselia, 2:17½, new world's champion yearling trotting filly, was sold at Lexington, Ky., recently to Lewis H. Titus of Goshen, N. Y. The reported price was $5,000. Anselia was owned by C. A. Harrison of Seattle, Wash., and was bred at the Woodland stock farm, Woodland, Cal. The filly is by Prince Anail, dam Ha Moko, by Moko.
